Welcome!

Happy new year and happy new term!

2021 has started with another level of uncertainty and a return to lockdown. We find ourselves back to where we were in March, but this time with a sense of familiarity as we are navigating homeschooling and finding the motivation to attend classes online.

The government has announced that GCSE and Alevel exams are cancelled this year and results will once again be teacher assessed. No doubt this is causing students some concern and worry when considering their future options. The Virtual School remains in place to provide advice and support for post 16 students in further education and beyond. We can offer advice on alternative pathways, apprenticeships, college and university courses as well as meeting with colleges to discuss how best to support students.

Aside from the Virtual School, check the post 16 section in this newsletter to find links to other forms of support on offer for students.

Lastly, stay safe and look after your mental health by finding new and enjoyable things to do during lockdown!

Online Learning, Help and Guidance

The Virtual School is here to help you on your learning journey at home, school and higher education. We will provide advice, quality online and physical resources to make access to achieving your goals as simple as possible.

Working on and offline

The previous lockdown was difficult, especially if you found it hard to get access to a laptop. Social workers can apply for a laptop for every child in the Virtual School. This will make studying at home easier if your pod, group or whole year are ever sent home. Please contact your social worker if you don't have a laptop.

You will find access to extra resources on the Virtual School website, and BBC Bitesize. You will also be able to access our new Life Skills and Learning app called THVS Learn. You will find everything from how to manage money, coping with bullying, stress and independent living, to English Literature, History and Maths resources. You will need a username and password for the new learning app. Please contact the Virtual School, if you haven't received a username and password by the end of February 2021.
